In this section of the paper we present our results for the different models of the system. We first consider the case where the system is composed of two coupled oscillators, one of which is a linear chain of three sites. The other oscillator is a single site. The coupling between them is via a central site. The results are shown in Figure 1. The top panel shows the time evolution of the occupation probabilities for the two oscillators. The bottom panel shows the time evolution of the energy levels for the two oscillators. The results show that the system exhibits a coherent state at low temperatures and a thermal state at high temperatures.

And now we must take up the question of the right of self-government. We have seen that the right of self-government is a natural right, and that it is a right which every man has by nature. It is also a right which every man has by law, as it is a right which every man has by the law of God. It is also a right which every man has by the law of the state.
