15 Successor in Title Successor in title refers to the person who inherits the title or interest in the property. This term is used to describe the transfer of ownership from one person to another. It can also refer to the transfer of ownership from a deceased person to their heirs. The term "successor in title" is often used in legal contexts, such as in wills and trusts, to indicate the person who will inherit the property after the death of the original owner.

Based on the results of the numerical experiments, it is shown that the proposed method can be used to solve problems of optimal control of systems with distributed parameters. The method is based on the use of the finite difference method for the spatial discretization of the state equation and the gradient projection method for the time discretization of the control equation. The method is implemented in a software package called "Optimal Control of Systems with Distributed Parameters".

The first step in the process is to identify the specific needs of the customer. This involves understanding their requirements, budget constraints, and timeline. Once these factors are established, the designer can begin the creative process. This typically involves sketching out initial ideas, creating mood boards, and developing prototypes. The designer may also consult with other professionals, such as engineers or marketers, to ensure that the final product meets all necessary standards and requirements. The design process is iterative, with multiple rounds of feedback and refinement until the final product is ready for market.
