recept with small single lobes. There are several species of Trichocolea with similar lobes, but they are all very different in the arrangement of the lobes. The lobes of T. tenuis are arranged in a whorl-like manner, while those of T. polystachys are arranged in a more or less regular series along the stem. The lobes of T. tenuis are also much smaller than those of T. polystachys. The lobes of T. tenuis are also much smaller than those of T. polystachys.

and P.D. almost exclusively at the time of the study. The subjects were predominantly male (61%) and received a general "full-blown" treatment regimen of 10 mg/day of Clomiphene. All tests for oestrogen, LH and FSH were conducted at the same time of day (10.00-11.00 h) using tests in identical sequence during all experiments. Frequency of the test was set at 10 mg/day, although all
