Democrat, "granger," which was originally a name applied to certain groups of reformers in the United States who sought to improve the condition of agriculture by reducing the power of the railroads, banks, and other large corporations. The name was derived from the fact that the members of these groups were often farmers, and they were called "grangers" because they were often seen riding on horseback through the country roads, carrying their surplus produce to market. The name was also used to describe the efforts of these groups to improve the condition of agriculture by reducing the power of the railroads, banks, and other large corporations.

En la actualidad, el desarrollo de las tecnologías de información y comunicación ha transformado la forma en que se realizan las transacciones financieras. Los sistemas de pago electrónico, como los sistemas de transferencia bancaria y las tarjetas de crédito, han facilitado la ejecución de transacciones financieras de manera más rápida, segura y conveniente. The first step in the process of creating a new culture is to identify the values that will define it. This involves examining the existing values of the organization and determining which ones are most aligned with the desired culture. It also involves identifying the values that are currently missing or underrepresented. Once the values have been identified, they can be communicated to all members of the organization through various channels such as meetings, emails, and posters. This communication should be ongoing and repeated until all members of the organization understand and buy into the new values. The second step is to establish clear goals and objectives that align with the new values. These goals should be specific, measurable, achievable, relevant, and time-bound (SMART). They should be communicated to all members of the organization and used as a guide for decision-making. The third step is to develop a plan of action that outlines the steps required to achieve the goals. This plan should be developed by a cross-functional team and include a timeline, resources, and responsibilities. The fourth step is to implement the plan and monitor progress. This involves tracking progress against the SMART goals and making adjustments as needed. The fifth step is to evaluate the success of the new culture. This involves assessing how well the organization has adopted the new values and achieved the desired outcomes. The evaluation should be conducted periodically to ensure that the culture remains aligned with the organization's mission and vision.

Consequently, the first step in the process of identifying the most effective treatment for a particular condition is to determine the underlying cause of the problem.

Na sequência, o autor descreve a estruturação da teoria de referência e a sua aplicação ao problema da identidade social. A teoria de referência é uma teoria que tenta explicar a origem e o desenvolvimento das identidades sociais. Ela é baseada na ideia de que as identidades sociais são construídas a partir de referências a outros grupos ou indivíduos, que servem como modelos para a construção da própria identidade.
