Environmental laws and the framework for environmental protection in the EU are based on the principles of prevention, pollution prevention and reduction, and the polluter pays principle. Environmental protection is a shared responsibility between the European Union and its member states, and it is also a responsibility of individual citizens and businesses. The EU has adopted several directives and regulations to promote environmental protection, such as the Water Framework Directive, the Air Quality Directive, the Waste Framework Directive, the Environmental Impact Assessment Directive, and the Sustainable Development Strategy. These measures aim to protect the environment, ensure sustainable development, and promote a healthy and safe living environment for all citizens.
